Resource Inventory

Assessing regional proximity of health care resources

Many factors influence an individual's access to health care services and community support. One of the most important is the simple geographic proximity of providers to the populations they serve. This analysis, therefore, attempts to show where services are located in relation to the residents who use them, especially those insured by Medicaid.

The major observation to be made for Western New York is simply that health care resources tend to be concentrated in center cities and their suburbs while they are relatively sparse in rural areas. Services are most frequently located and most densely concentrated where the most people are. Rural areas, with fewer people, have proximate access to fewer providers. The key question is whether those resources are proportionate to the need.

The greatest concentration of health care providers for acute care, primary care, and mental and behavioral care are in the region's two largest cities, Buffalo and Niagara Falls. With the exception of primary care, the greatest concentration of "safety net" providers -- those with a significant share of volume with Medicaid patients -- are also in the metropolitan core.

Rural residents typically find themselves farther from needed services than their urban counterparts. Even residents near small cities in rural counties may be more distant from providers than residents in the metropolitan area. How do we assess whether or not these communities are underserved?

This analysis considers the distance of providers from population combined with the ratio of providers to population. Is the supply of providers big enough? is it close enough? There's a more extensive explanation of the methodology below. The short answer is that in many cases small cities in the outlying counties as well as rural areas are relatively underserved. Yet this analysis will suggest that these gaps in proximity to services might be addressed with the addition of only a few providers if positioned strategically in the region.

Methodology

The following analysis uses proximity as a proxy for access to find which areas within Western New York have relatively low or high access to certain types of health care providers. A proximity score based on the number of providers per population and their relative distance to the population is calculated for each ZIP code for a key set of provider types. The proximity score for each ZIP code is determined by counting the number of providers per population within specified linear distances of each ZIP code's center of population, weighting them based on their distance from the zip code and adding them together (see formula below).

Proximity Score $= \sum a + .4b + .2c + .1d$

Where:
a = # of providers within 2 miles (per 100,000 people);
b = # of providers within 2-5 miles (per 100,000 people);
c = # of providers within 5-10 miles (per 100,000 people); and d = # of providers within 10-20 miles (per 100,000 people).

For example, this means that one provider within two miles of a ZIP code's population center is equivalent to twenty providers within twenty miles of that ZIP's population center. Also, if one ZIP code has a large population and another has a small population, but the number and distances to providers are equal, the ZIP code with the lower population will produce a higher proximity score. After initial scoring, all 198 included ZIP codes are ranked on a 0-100 scale, with lower numbers indicating lower proximities to health care providers.

The analysis is performed for key types of health care providers: (1) hospitals, (2) Safety Net primary care providers, (3) Safety Net Primary Care providers, (4) Safety Net mental health care providers, (5) non-Safety Net mental health care providers, (6) Safety Net behavioral health care providers, (7) non-Safety Net behavioral health care providers, and (8) all specialty care providers.

A different method is used to measure proximity to hospitals. This simply measures the linear distance of each ZIP code's center of population to the nearest acute care hospital. ZIP codes are sorted by these distances and ranks are assigned to each ZIP code, where greater distances from the ZIP code to the nearest hospital indicate lower proximities.

The analysis does not account for health care providers beyond the eight-county area of Western New York and therefore may underestimate the proximity to health care providers for ZIP codes near the borders of the region, especially along the eastern border.

These findings are discussed in further detail on the following pages and in an appendix to this report. In the pages that immediately follow, we show maps that indicate the relative ranking of ZIP codes for proximity to providers in several key categories. As with other maps and tables in this report, green is good (more proximate supply) and red is bad (less proximate supply).

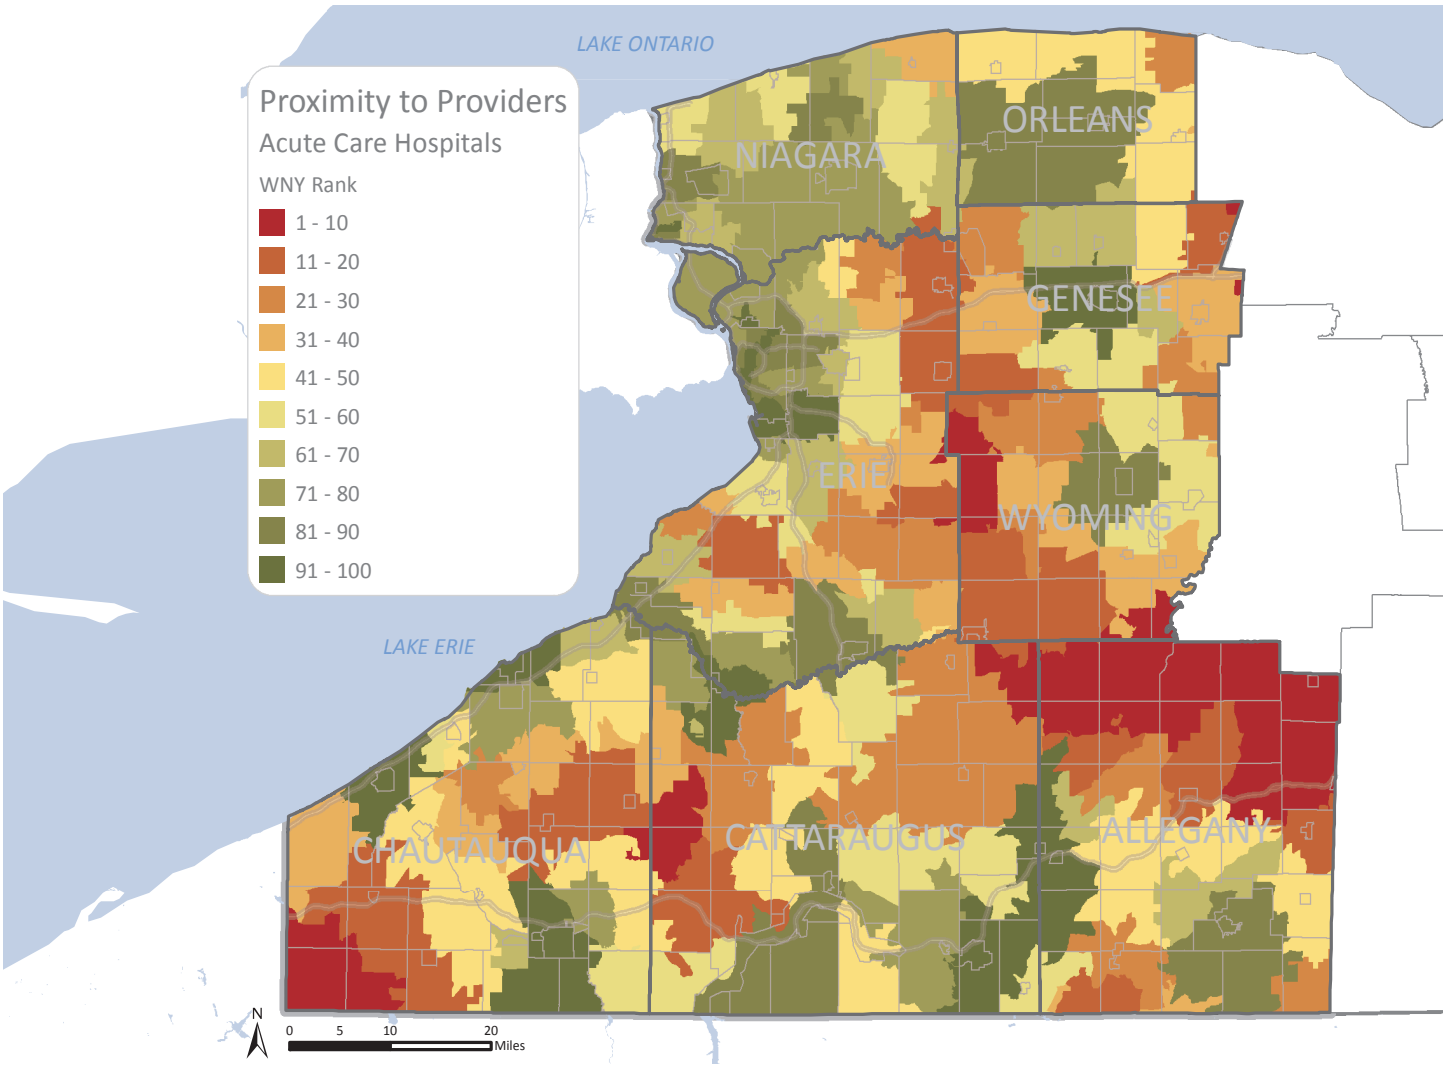
The appendix to this report includes an exhaustive listing of providers, including community support resources, organized by category and mapped across the region with a narrative discussion of key findings.

Hospitals

Acute care hospitals in Western New York are concentrated around population centers. Of the 42 acute care hospitals in the region, more than half (25) are located in the region's two metropolitan counties, Erie and Niagara. This concentration leads to higher proximity scores for ZIP codes in the cities of Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and also in their adjacent suburbs, which have lower concentrations of Medicaid enrollees.

In the region's more rural counties, cities like Jamestown, Olean and Batavia also have hospitals and show relatively high proximity scores. However, the dispersed populations just beyond these centers are the most underserved by hospitals in Western New York. This is most apparent in the northern swath of Allegany County and the southern edge of Wyoming County, which includes the highest intensity of the relatively low proximity scores across the region.

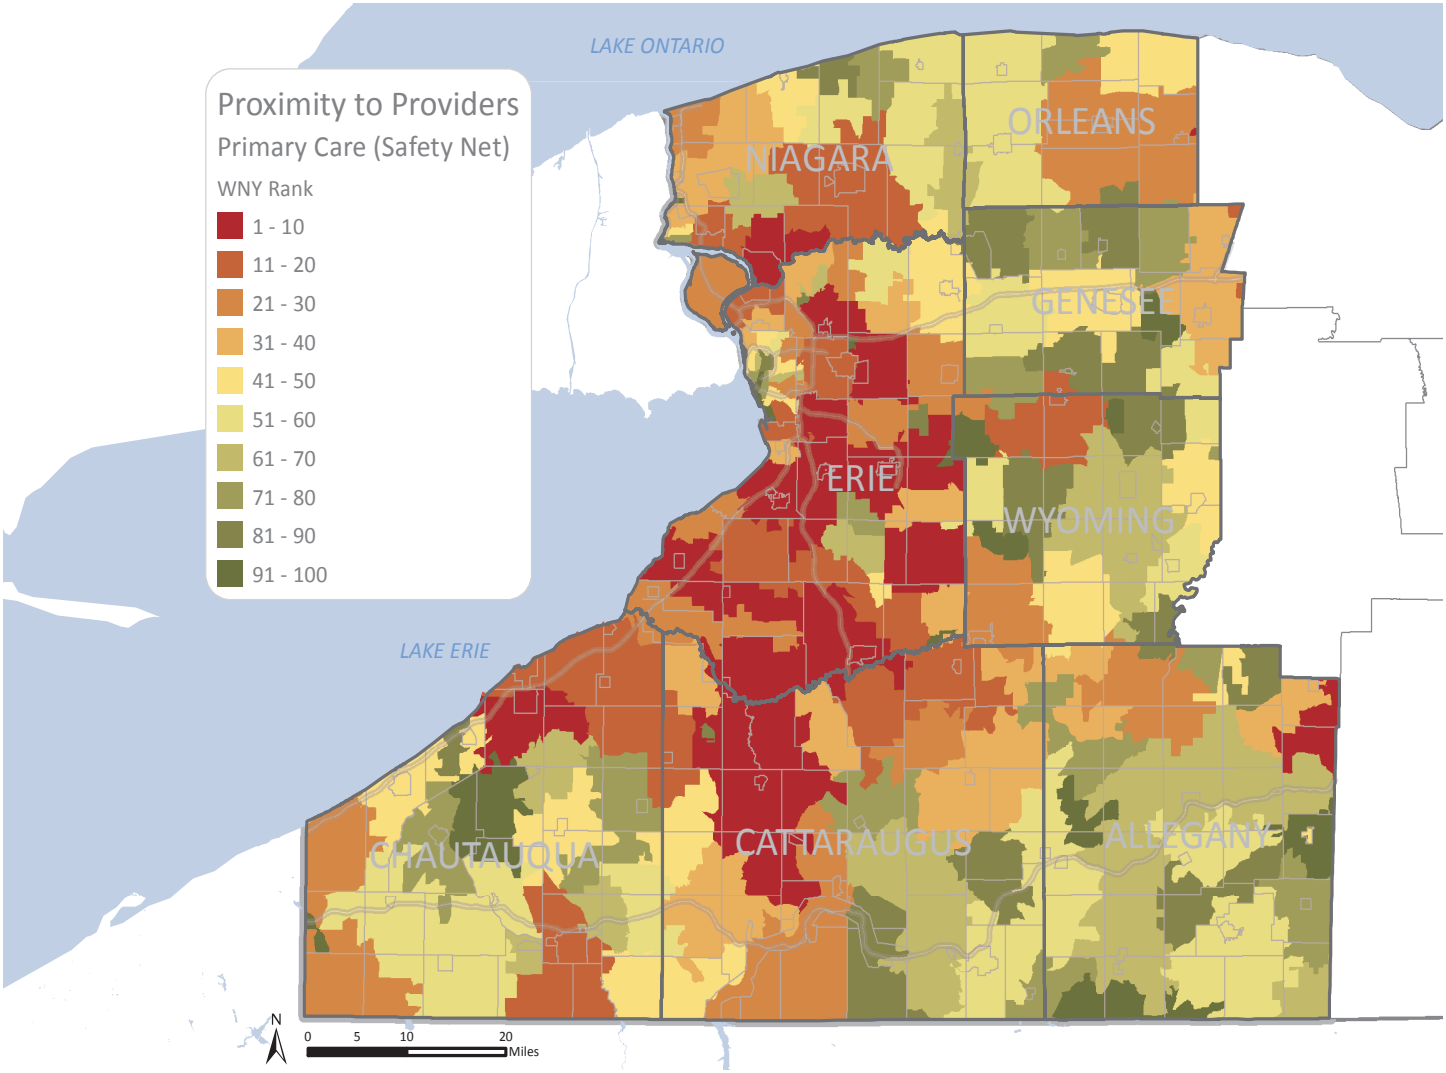
In sum, the map confirms the commonly-held assumption that rural populations are more isolated from, and therefore have poorer access to hospitals, than their urban counterparts. Unlike all subsequent assessments, this proximity measure is based solely on distance and does not factor in for the number of people in each ZIP code and thus may overstate low access to hospitals for rural populations.



Safety Net Primary Care Providers

Safety Net primary care providers are also concentrated in the region's cities, while other places with relatively high population densities, like the suburbs of Buffalo, have a comparatively small number of facilities offering Safety Net Primary care. Although these towns may have one or two Safety Net primary care providers nearby, and also may be within twenty miles of several others in nearby cities, they hold many residents and, therefore, yield lower proximity scores. However, since these towns have many non-Safety Net primary doctors and generally more affluent populations, low proximity to Safety Net doctors in these places may not be as problematic as it is for rural populations on the southern and eastern borders of Erie County and wide stretches of Cattaraugus, Chautauqua, and Niagara counties where there are higher proportions of low-income residents and fewer Safety Net providers.

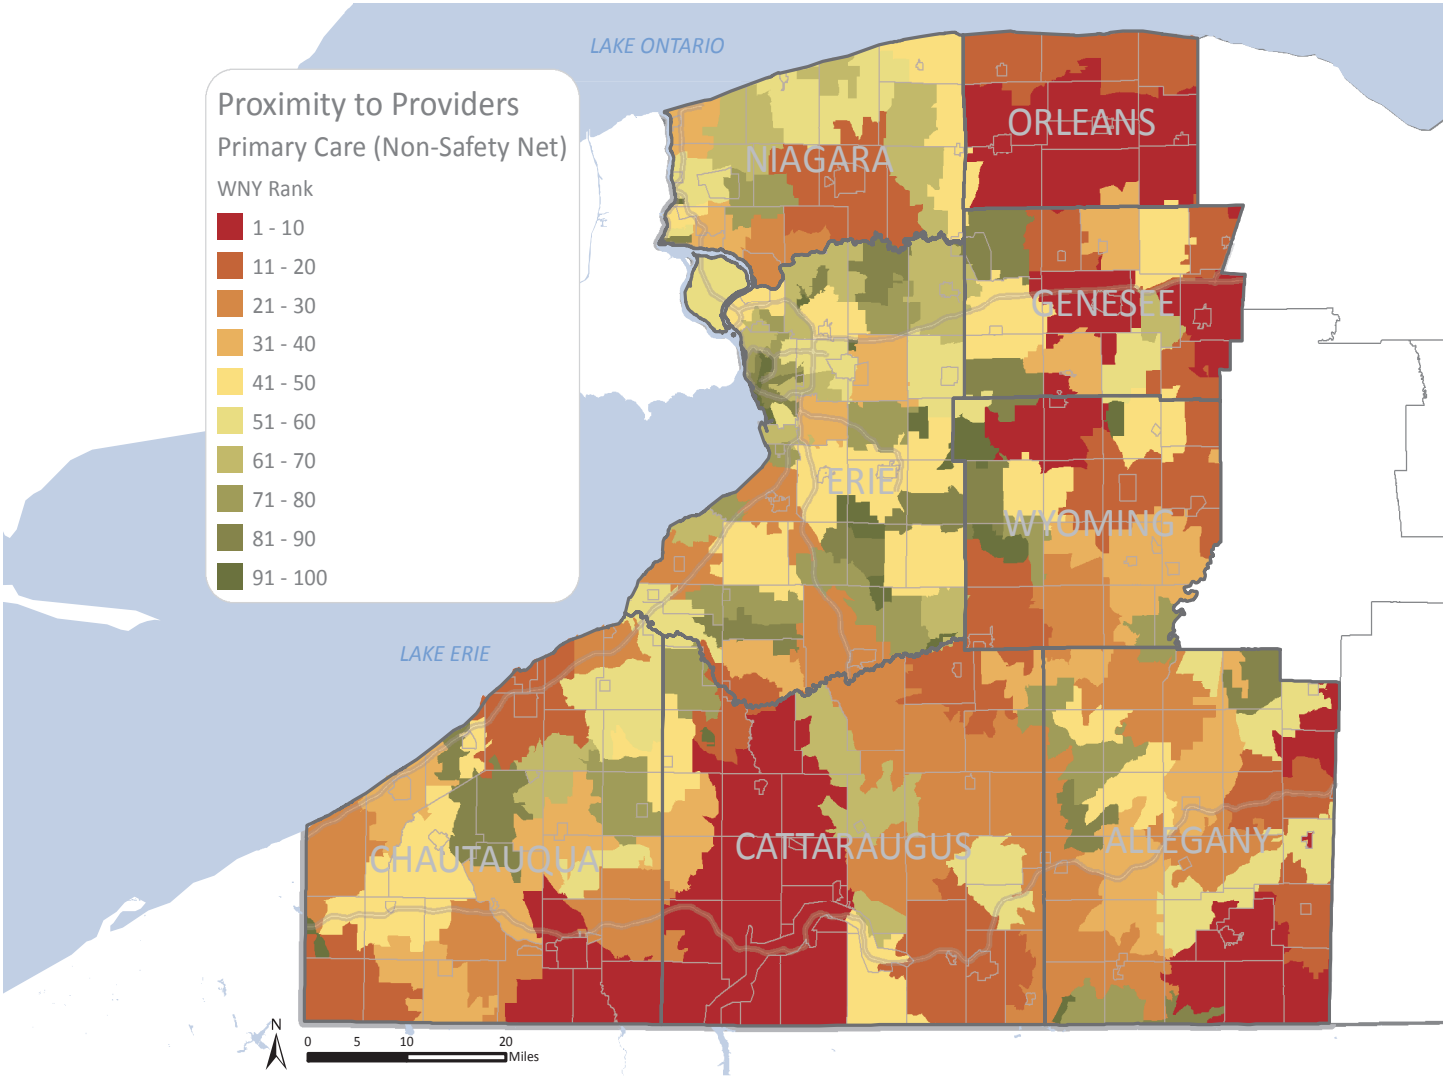
Many of Western New York's rural ZIP codes show high measures of proximity to Safety Net primary care providers even though providers are dispersed broadly throughout these communities. This is partly due to the low population in these locations, but also because Safety Net primary care providers here, though few, are strategically scattered in rural centers, like Wellsville, Albion, Warsaw and Arcade, that are commonly within a reasonable distance of most of the surrounding rural populations.



Non-Safety Net Primary Care Providers

Even while accounting for their smaller populations in the proximity score, rural ZIP codes still generate the lowest proximity scores for non-Safety Net primary care providers. For instance, all ZIP codes within Orleans County, which has only four non-Safety Net primary care providers within its borders, fall in the bottom twenty percent of the region's ZIP codes on this measure. Many ZIP codes in other rural counties also produce low proximity scores for non-Safety Net primary care providers, including those within cities like Jamestown, Batavia and Salamanca.

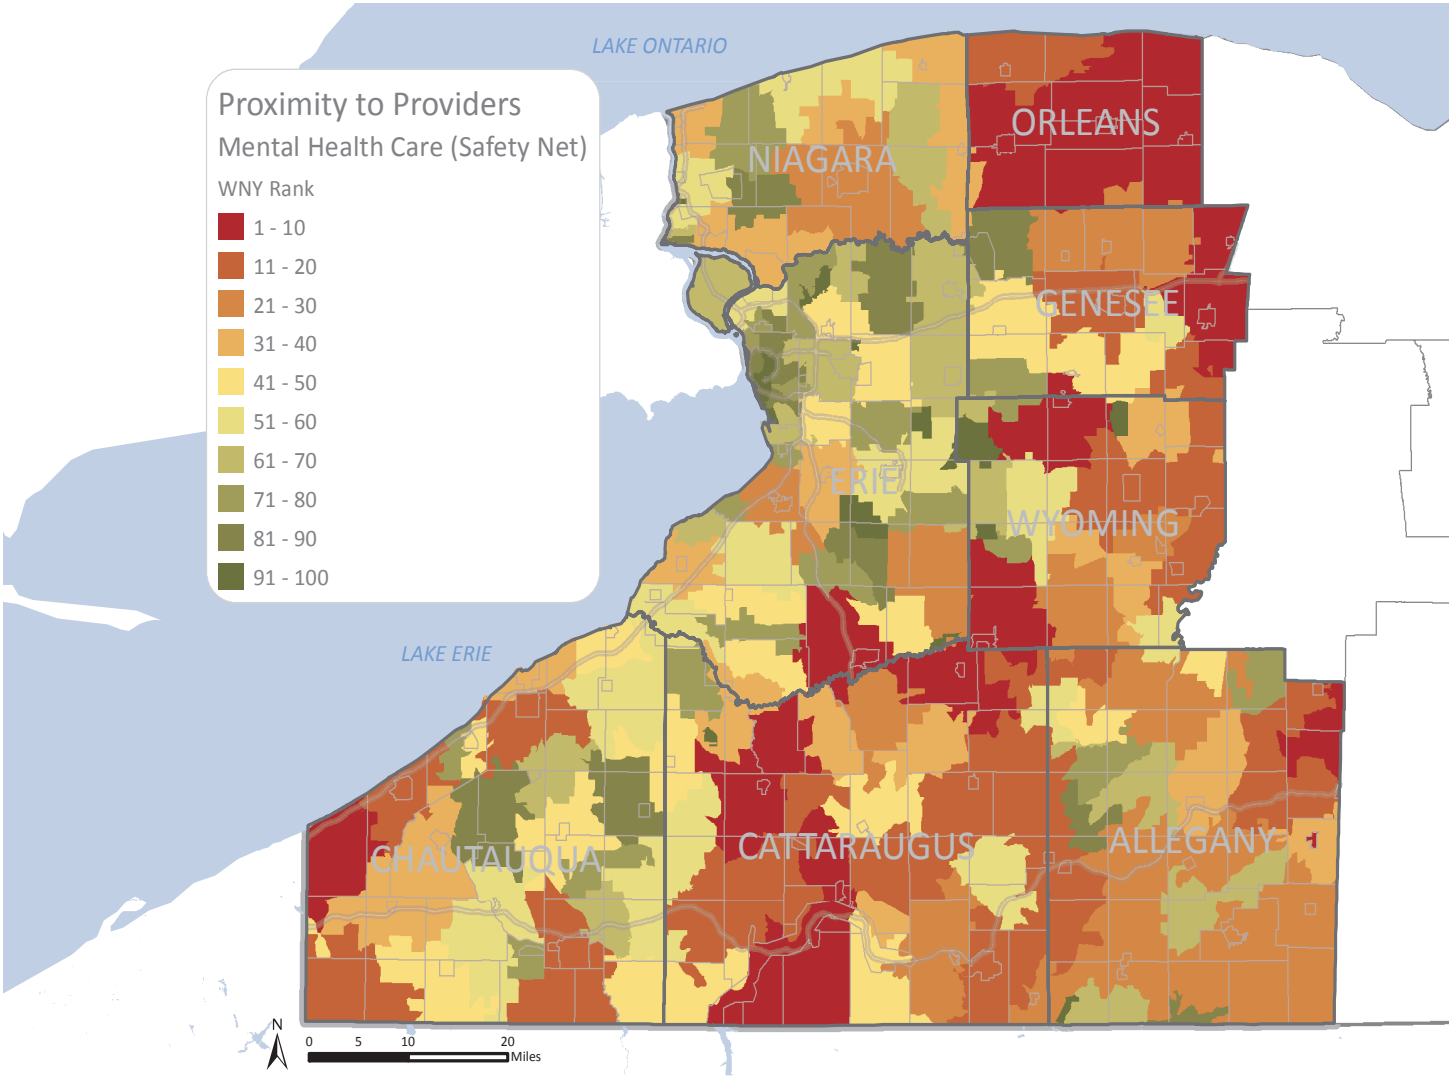
The communities where low access to primary care is most severe lie in western Cattaraugus County, especially zip codes 14719, and 14755 which fall within the bottom ten percent of proximity scores for both Safety Net and non-Safety Net primary care providers. Conversely, many suburban areas that received low proximity scores for Safety Net primary care providers reveal high, or at least fair, proximity scores for non-Safety Net providers. And in Niagara County, Lockport and North Tonawanda ZIP codes that score relatively low on this measure also showed low scores of proximity to Safety Net primary care providers.



Safety Net Mental Health Care Providers

The relative proximity to mental health care providers reveals a similar general trend as proximity to other key providers – high access in urban areas and low access in rural areas, which remains true even after factoring for population size. Many of the most densely populated zip codes within Western New York, which also hold the largest concentrations of those in need of mental health support, have the best geographic access to mental care providers. However, some zip codes in the metropolitan counties of Western New York, around Springville, Hamburg and Lockport for instance, do not own as many mental health care providers within close proximity as zip codes in Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

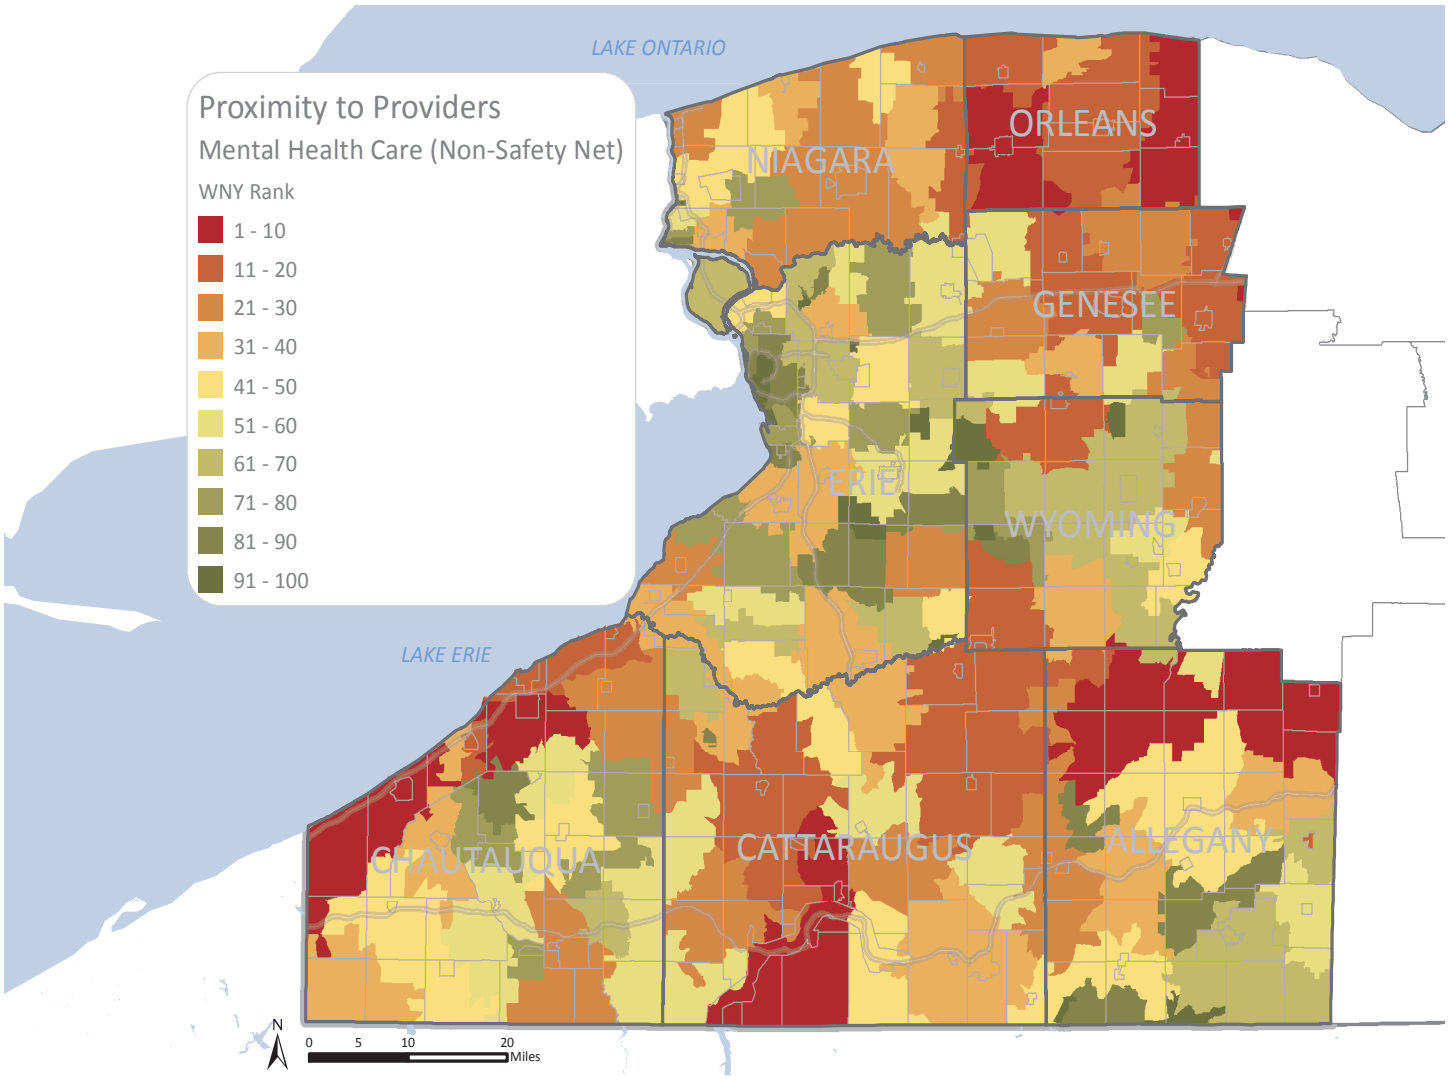
Low access to mental health care providers is most extreme in rural counties. Orleans County again shows the lowest overall access with all of its zip codes falling within the bottom twenty percent of proximity scores across the region. Low access is slightly less pervasive in other rural counties, but many cities and villages in these counties – places with relatively high concentrations of people in need of mental support services – rank as having the lowest access to providers relative to the region. For instance, the zip codes of Jamestown, Salamanca, Wellsville, Attica, Batavia and Medina all fall within the bottom ten percent of Safety Net mental health care provider proximity scores. Though these places may have one provider close by, since there are surrounded by vast stretches without any mental health providers, and since they have relatively high populations, they have particularly low access to mental health support.



Non-Safety Net Mental Health Care Providers

Relative proximity to non-Safety Net mental health care providers shows the same general pattern as for Safety Net providers: closer proximity in metropolitan counties than in rural areas. However, there are some differences. While most of the rural areas with poor proximity to Safety Net mental health care resources also score low on this proximity measure, some places, like parts of Allegany and Wyoming counties, show reasonable proximity to non-Safety Net mental health care providers. Yet all ZIP codes within Orleans County fall near the bottom of this proximity measure once again, as does much of the northern half of Allegany County, parts of Chautauqua County (e.g., Dunkirk) and ZIP code 14779 in Cattaraugus County (containing Salamanca and the Allegany Reservation).

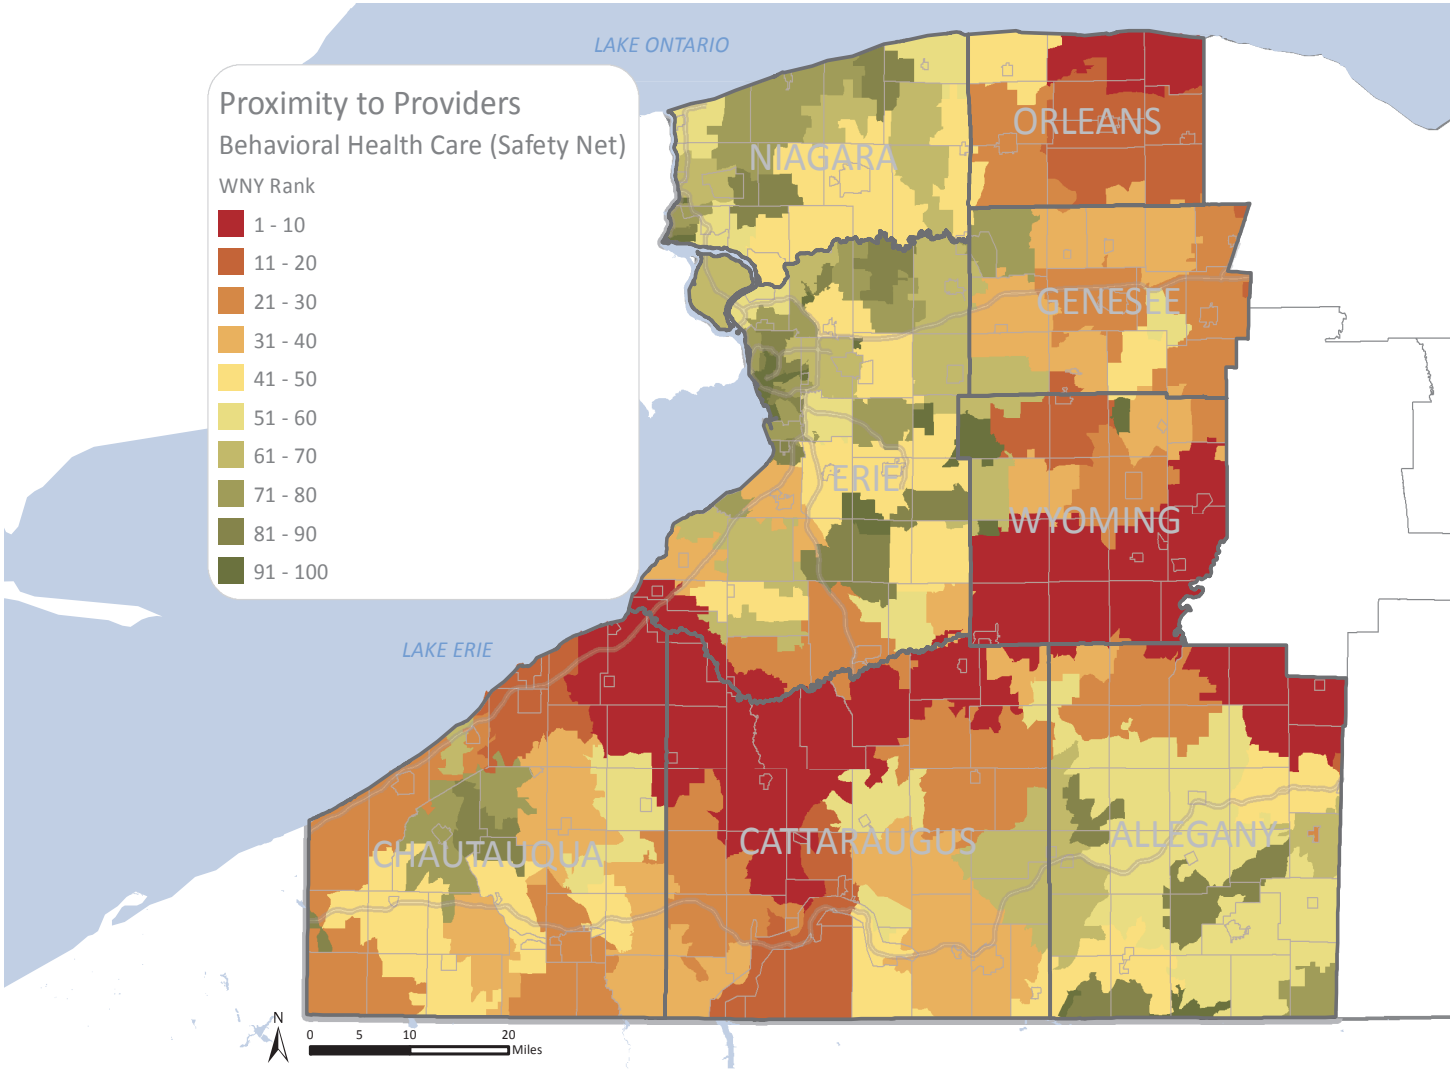
The City of Buffalo is the best-served by mental health care providers, even after accounting for its large population. Niagara Falls is also in close proximity to non-Safety Net mental health care providers, but the bulk of Niagara County, especially the eastern half, reveal low proximity scores for these providers. Meanwhile, most suburban residents in Erie and Niagara counties are generally within reasonable proximity to these providers. In sum, this map shows that, even though rural areas have less people overall, because providers are so dispersed, they in fact contain more people beyond close proximity to mental health care providers.



Safety Net Behavioral Health Care Providers

As is the case for mental health care providers, proximity to behavioral health care providers again underscores the urban-rural dichotomy. The cities of Buffalo and Niagara Falls, which contain among the highest concentrations of people in need of addiction and abuse treatment services, have the highest proximity to Safety Net behavioral health care providers. This high proximity extends to most surrounding villages and suburbs in Erie and Niagara counties, although some towns and villages like Hamburg, Angola, Brant and Springville, do have low proximity to Safety Net behavioral health resources.

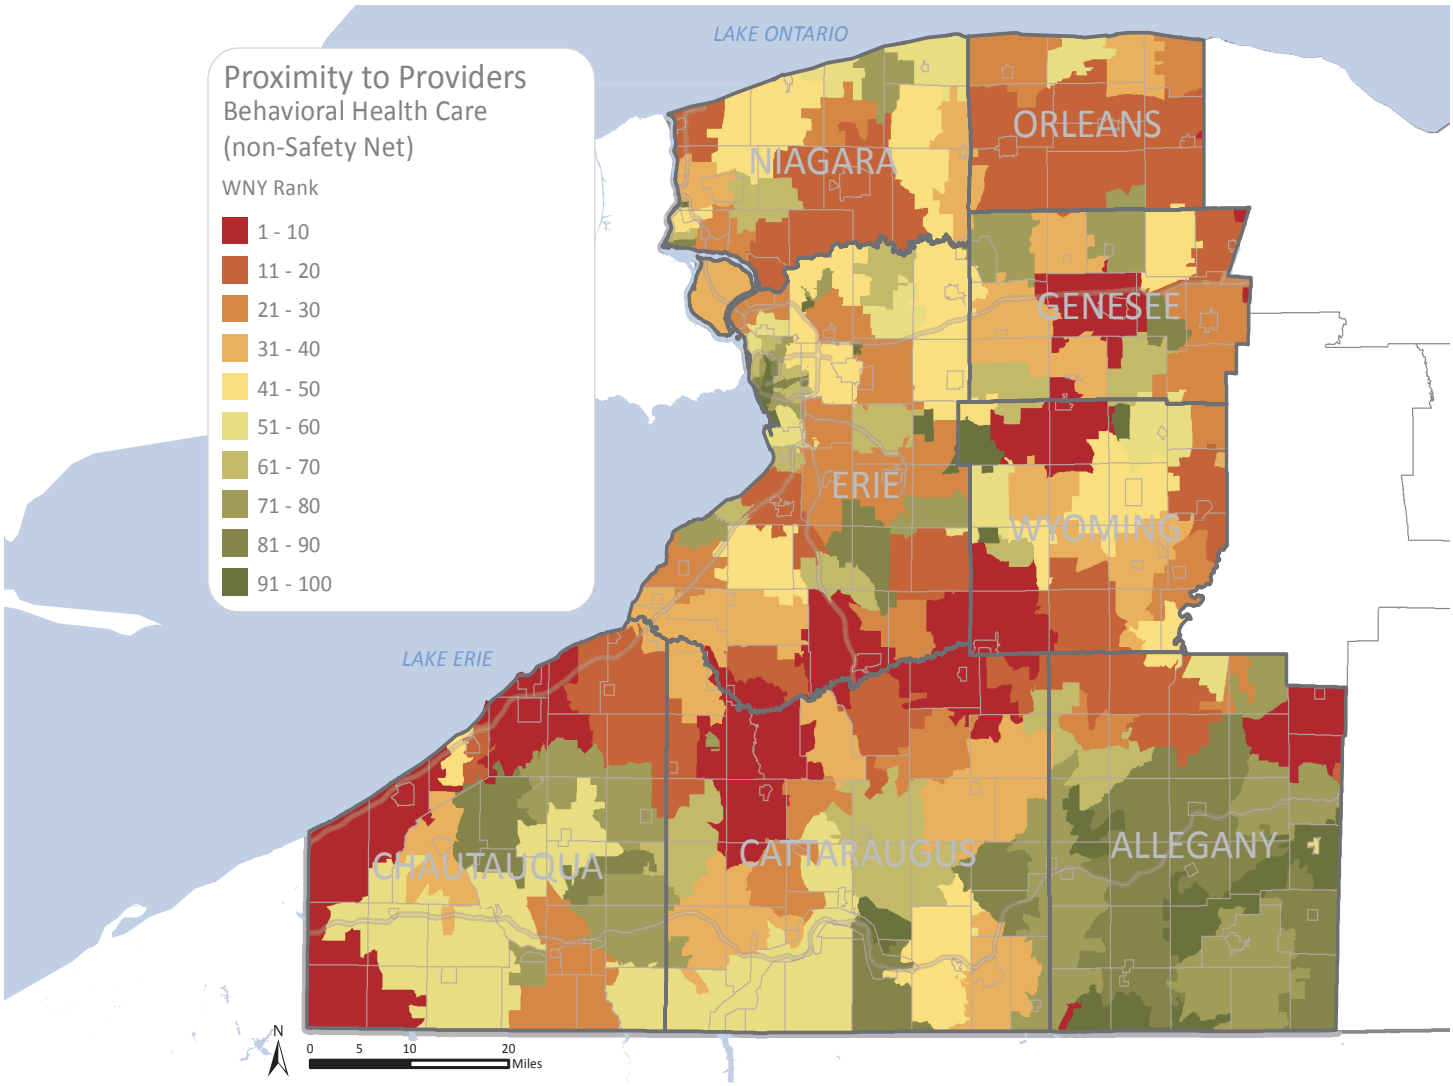
Rural counties again generate the most extreme low proximity scores for a key provider type. In the case of Safety Net behavioral health care providers, the lowest proximity scores concentrate in rural towns of Chautauqua, Cattaraugus and Wyoming counties bordering the southern portion of Erie County. Orleans County shows strikingly low relative proximity to yet another key type of provider. The bulk of Allegany County has relatively high proximity, in part due to low population in this area, while most of Genesee County has somewhat low proximity to Safety Net behavioral health care providers.



Non-Safety Net Behavioral Health Care Providers

Looking at relative proximity to non-Safety Net behavioral health care providers tells a slightly different story of access to health care in Western New York. While urban areas, particularly Buffalo and Niagara Falls, still show some of the highest proximity scores for this provider category, many rural areas, like most of Allegany County, also rank high. Conversely, though notable ZIP codes in rural areas again score low on this proximity measure, some of the lowest proximity scores appear in ZIP codes within the region's metropolitan counties (e.g., around Springville, Hamburg and Lockport).

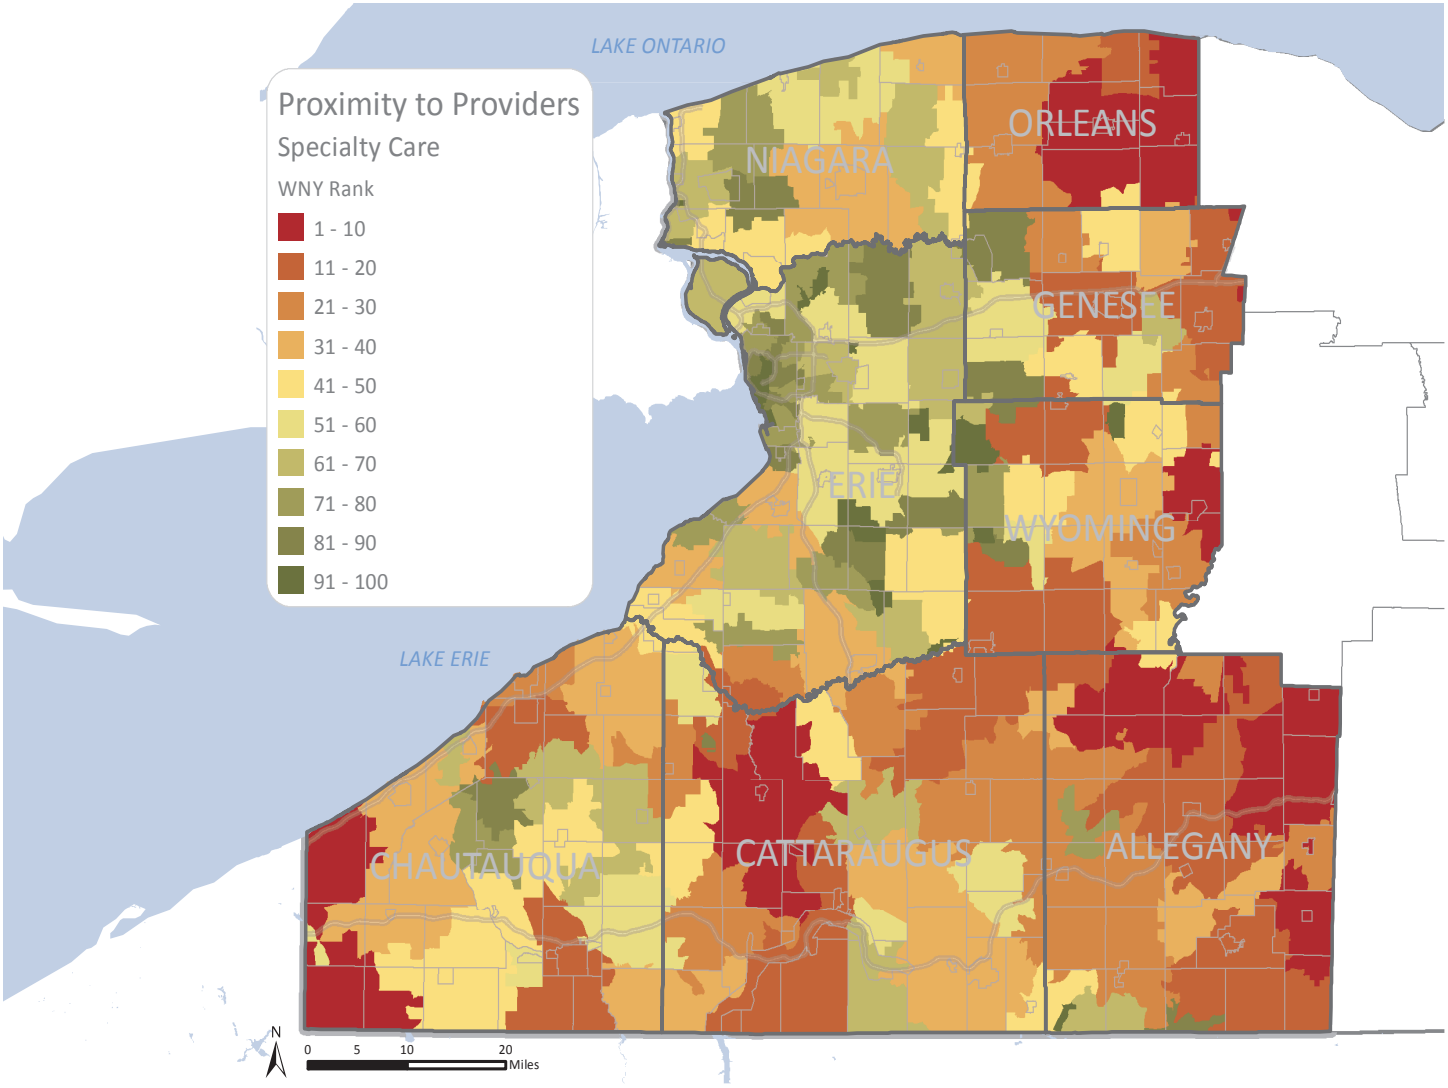
The most severely low proximity scores for non-Safety Net behavioral health care providers seem to converge on population centers within the more rural counties of Western New York. For instance, Attica, Batavia, Dunkirk, Fredonia and Westfield all lie within ZIP codes ranking in the bottom ten percent of the region for this measure. Orleans County ZIP codes, though not among the most extremely low proximity scores, show relatively low access overall for yet another key provider category.



Specialty Care Providers

Though this measure cannot be used to assess relative proximity to specific types of specialty care providers, the map does prove a basic and powerful point – specialty care providers are generally much harder to reach for rural residents than for their urban counterparts. In fact, the urban-rural dichotomy of proximity to health care is most clearly shown in this metric evaluating relative access to all specialty care providers. Only a few ZIP codes within Erie and Niagara counties (e.g., Lockport, Hamburg, Somerset and Springville) fall outside of the top fifty percent on this proximity score. Meanwhile, only 31 (27%) of the 111 ZIP codes lying primarily within the six most rural counties of Western New York rank better than the bottom fifty percent.

The area with the highest proximity to specialty care providers within Western New York, in general, falls in the City of Buffalo. Concentrations of specialty care providers in Niagara Falls, Amherst, Clarence and Orchard Park also produce high proximity scores for these locales. Areas with the most severely low proximities to specialty care providers lie within rural counties, even after controlling for lower populations here. This includes Albion and its surrounding ZIP code while all other ZIP codes primarily within Orleans County rank in the bottom thirty percent of this score, again highlighting the low access to providers of all types for Orleans County residents. Batavia's ZIP code scores in the bottom twenty percent for proximity to specialty care providers, as do the ZIP codes of Le Roy, Wellsville, Attica, and Arcade. Most of the other ZIP codes with the lowest proximity to specialty care providers are overwhelmingly rural and sparsely populated which further stresses the severity of limited access to specialty care in these areas.



a. Safety Net Providers

Safety-net providers and provider sites account for one out of ten of the total or 1,220 altogether. By definition, these are providers that serve proportionally greater volumes of vulnerable populations. Those covered by Medicaid, the dual eligible and the uninsured generally represent at least 30-35% of patient volumes for safety-net providers.

Approximately two-thirds are providers of health care – physicians, federally qualified health centers (FQHC), laboratories, mental health clinics, and others – and the balance of community-based resources such as youth and family programs, housing resources and education and training providers.

More than not are located in Erie and Niagara Counties, generally where poverty and Medicaid concentrations are highest, as in Niagara Falls, Buffalo and inner-ring suburbs. Smaller but notable clusters exist in smaller urban areas like Jamestown (Chautauqua County), Olean (Cattaraugus County) and Batavia (Genesee County).

Health Care Providers

Hospitals and Acute Care Centers

Hospitals, urgent care centers and ambulatory surgical centers are present across the region at seventy-four locations. With 42 hospitals, this is the most common kind of immediate-care facility in Western New York. It includes specialized hospitals such as Children's Hospital in Buffalo.

Across facilities, 216 is the median number of employees, reflecting sites that are large hubs for the provision of urgent and surgical health care.

Almost three-quarters of the total are located in Erie and Niagara Counties, concentrated in urban settings where poverty and Medicaid population densities are greatest.

Outside the metropolitan core, up to six hospitals, ambulatory surgery sites and/or urgent care centers exist in each of the other six counties. The greatest number is in Chautauqua County while Wyoming has only one (Wyoming County Community Hospital).

A safety-net site exists in all counties of the region. Most safety-net providers are hospitals; only one is an urgent care center. Safety-net providers are ones where about a third or more of patient volumes reflect the uninsured or those covered by Medicaid. Safety-net facilities account for about a third of the total, indicative of the acute stage hospital setting where many Medicaid patients get treatment.

Health Care Providers

Primary Care

Over 730 primary care service sites were identified. The group includes individual physicians, family practices, pediatric practices, federally qualified health centers and more. Most are relatively small private practices with a median of three employees. More than not provide services in Erie and Niagara County only, where the majority are located.

Despite the overall large number of providers, notable gaps in primary care exist across the region's geography, health care facilities and for some of the region's most vulnerable residents. Indicators show South Tier Counties in need of greater capacity. At least three-quarters or more of the entire population in Allegany, Cattaraugus and Chautauqua Counties has been identified as living in a primary health professional shortage area (HPSA), with insufficient provider numbers in the area of primary care relative to population need, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human services Health Resources and Services Administration. This is true even though proximity to existing safety-net providers is high in many portions of this tri-county area.

In Genesee and Orleans Counties, shortages of primary care professionals exist not for all populations but for Medicaid-eligible residents. Genesee County is the only one out of the eight without a federally qualified health care center.

In Erie and Niagara Counties, shortages exist in Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Newfane, where traveling barriers are arguably greatest because of geographic distance from the metro core and/or the percentages of households in these areas that do not have access to a car.

Health Care Providers

Laboratories and Radiology

Locations offering laboratory and radiology services are common - over 1800 exist across Western New York. Most are integrated within a larger context of a doctor's office, clinic or hospital, for the convenience of patients and clinicians.

This service category represents about 15% of the total inventory of health and community-support resources.

Seven out of ten locations are in Erie County, concentrated in the City of Buffalo and surrounding suburbs. While at least one safety-net provider exists in every county, services are scarce in Allegany and Orleans where less than a half-dozen providers exist, generally where population densities are highest like in Fredonia, Jamestown, Olean, and Batavia.

Health Care Providers

Mental Health Providers

Exactly 245 mental health care providers and support organizations exist in the region. The group includes psychiatric centers, psychiatrists, peer support programs, mental health associations, outpatient counseling sites and more. Fourteen providers are certified by the NYS Office of Mental Health pursuant to Article 31 of the Mental Hygiene Law.

Two out of three are located in Erie County, concentrated in Buffalo and surrounding suburbs. Services are limited in other counties where about two dozen or fewer providers exist in each. In Orleans, only two were identified - a site for Mid Erie Mental Health Services and the Mental Health Association.

The relatively few providers outside the metropolitan core, relative to population numbers, has led to four counties in the region being designated as ones with a mental health professional shortage, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources & Services Administration. These include Allegany, Cattaraugus, Orleans and Wyoming.

About one out of three providers - 81 altogether - are safety-net providers, providing services to relatively large proportions of Medicaid and uninsured individuals. At least one safety-net provider exists in every county, although the large concentration is in Erie County. Yet even this supply is insufficient to meet demand, as the City of Buffalo, along with Chautauqua County, has been designated as having a shortage of mental health professionals for Medicaid-eligible populations.

Health Care Providers

Developmentally Disabled

Exactly 135 organizations provide services - health, education, housing, counseling, advocacy and more - to individuals with developmental disabilities. Over three dozen sites are certified by the NYS Office for People with Developmental Disabilities (OPWDD) under Article 16 of the Mental Hygiene Law.

Many providers in this group have multiple locations, particularly People, Inc., Community Services for the Developmentally Disabled and the Arc. Among the 135 locations where services are provided, 58 reflect unique providers.

Two out of three provider locations are in Erie County, concentrated primarily in and around Buffalo where Medicaid population densities are highest. Each of the other counties has 10 or fewer providers. Genesee has the most.

50 of the total are safety-net providers, concentrated heavily in or near Buffalo. No safety-net providers exist in Orleans, Wyoming, Allegany or Cattaraugus, the most rural areas of the region.

Health Care Providers

Behavioral Health

Exactly 125 behavioral health providers exist across Western New York. This group includes psychiatric treatment facilities, drug abuse and addiction treatment centers, and certified providers offering services under Article 32 of the Mental Hygiene Law with oversight by the NYS Office of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse (OASA).

In terms of employment, some of the largest of the group include Northpointe Council, WCA Hopsital in Jamestown and Genesee Council on Alcoholism and Substance Abuse.

Six out of 10 providers are located in Erie and Niagara Counties, present where Medicaid population densities are most pronounced in urban cores, particularly Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Lockport. In more rural portions of these metropolitan counties, nearby options are limited.

Behavioral health options are also notably more limited in Cattaraugus, Genesee, Orleans, Wyoming Counties where under 10 providers in each offer programs and services. Moreover, while there are 39 safety-net providers in the group, most are in Erie County. None exist in several rural counties where residents may be close to an hour or more away from the nearest behavioral health services.

Health Care Providers

Home Health Care

Exactly 57 home health care providers exist in the eight-county region. This includes three suppliers of home health equipment and supplies. The larger majority offer in-home nursing, health aide and homemaker services. Over half of providers are located in Erie County, concentrated in areas where Medicaid population densities are highest. Yet notable gaps exist in the county's more rural southtowns and east towns, including in areas where Medicaid population densities are notable.

Service capacity is also scarce outside of Erie County, where in each county, six or fewer home health providers are located. Limited access to in-home services in these areas could potentially contribute to otherwise avoidable care in nursing homes and residential rehabilitation facilities.

On the upside, 40 out of the 57 provider locations are safety-net providers, where 35% or more of patient volumes reflect those insured by Medicaid or lacking insurance altogether. Among the largest of the safety-net providers, in terms of employment, are Visiting Nursing Association (VNA) of Western New York (based in Williamsville) and Catholic Health System's McAuley Seton Home Care (based in Cheektowaga).

Health Care Providers

Dental Health Providers

Over 1,300 dental health providers exist across Western New York. About nine out of 10 are private-practice dentists and dental offices. The region also boasts a dental school, the University at Buffalo School of Dental Medicine.

Dental health providers are generally present in areas where Medicaid population densities are highest, with the exception of visible gaps on the East Side of Buffalo, selected neighborhoods in Niagara Falls, Albion (in Orleans County) and spots in Cattaraugus and Allegany Counties. Indeed, the region's most rural counties have under 20 providers each to serve their entire populations, with 8 in Wyoming, 14 in Orleans and 17 in Allegany. Moreover, these rural areas have no safety-net providers, which are rare among this group of 1,339. Only four in all are safety-net providers, with two located in Buffalo, one in Jamestown and the fourth in Dunkirk.

Rather, many private dental practices are located in Erie County's suburbs, where average household incomes across the region are highest and where households are more likely to have dental insurance and/or the capacity to pay out of pocket.

Health Care Providers

Pharmacies

Over 500 pharmacy locations exist across Western New York. Exactly 255 are unique providers. The difference reflects multiple locations of major retail outlets with pharmacies such as Rite Aid and CVS.

Pharmacy locations are generally concentrated in areas where Medicaid population densities are highest, with the exception of visible gaps on the East Side of Buffalo and in selected Niagara Falls neighborhoods. Yet only 10 out of the 508 total are safety-net providers, where the uninsured, Medicaid enrollees, and dual eligible account for 35% of total patient volumes. Safety-net pharmacies are concentrated in Erie County's urban core (5 out of the 10 are in Buffalo). Niagara Falls and Jamestown also have one each.

Regionwide, six out of ten pharmacies - 317 in all - are in Erie county. Meanwhile ten or fewer options for filling prescriptions exist in rural counties, including Allegany (10 pharmacies), Orleans (9 pharmacies) and Wyoming (9 pharmacies). These locations are, however, closely aligned with where Medicaid patients reside, fostering access for the most vulnerable in these rural areas.

Health Care Providers

Rehabilitation Services

This category includes a diverse mix of 30 drug and alcohol addiction rehabilitation services, along with sites for physical rehabilitation services related to physical therapy, orthopedic surgery and other conditions.

What is revealed are the limited opens for rehabilitation outside of the metropolitan core. Nothing exists in Orleans County, or south of the Fredonia/Dunkirk area in Chautauqua County where there is a single provider.

Fourteen of the total - about half - are safety-net providers, offering services to relatively larger volumes of Medicaid and other economically vulnerable patients. It's a proportion of safety-net providers that is higher than in other health care specialty areas, pointing to a health care need among Medicaid patients that may be comparatively high relative to the general population.

Health Care Providers

Skilled Nursing, Assisted Living and Offices for the Aging

Nearly 150 providers offer skilled nursing care and residential assisted living services. The group also includes a half dozen agencies on aging. Among the largest, in terms of employment, are Genesee County Nursing Home, Beechwood Nursing Home and Highpointe on Michigan. Across facility locations, 115 is the median number of employees.

Two out of three of the 149 total are located in Erie and Niagara Counties. These providers are relatively less concentrated in urban locales where Medicaid population densities are highest and comparatively more commonly found in suburban locations.

This is true even of the 85 safety-net providers in the group, representing more than half the total, indicative of where large numbers of Medicaid dollars are directed. Safety-net providers are present in all eight counties, and even in Erie county's suburban and more rural areas. Also noteworthy is how these providers outnumber those providing home health and transportation services in most rural counties, services that would expand health care options for homebound seniors who no longer drive.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Pediatrics

Slightly over 200 health care providers for children exist in the region. These include pediatricians, clinics, hospital-based practices and other provider sites. Most are small private practices with a median of three employees.

With a critical mass of providers existing in Erie County - three out of four of the total - health services for children are strongest here, particularly in the City of Buffalo and surrounding suburbs. On the other hand, less than a handful of pediatric specialists exist in the most rural counties of Western New York. Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming have less than five providers each.

About one out of six or 16% are safety-net providers, offering services to large volumes of children and families covered by Medicaid, dual insured or uninsured. Most of these providers are located in Erie and Niagara County. Genesee and Wyoming on the region's eastern border have no pediatric safety-net providers.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Internal Medicine

The region has over 460 health care providers specializing in internal medicine, trained to address a broad spectrum of primary care needs in adults, from prevention to management of chronic illness. Most are small private practices with just a few employees (three is the median).

Internal medicine specialists are concentrated where population densities are highest, in Erie County, particularly Buffalo and northern suburbs. Three out of four providers are located in Erie County, a percentage that is disproportionately high against Erie County's 60% share of the region's total population.

Fewer than a dozen providers are located in rural Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming Counties, Moreover, not a single safety-net provider is located in two of these counties: Orleans and Genesee, creating gaps in this component of primary care for the most vulnerable.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Audiologists, Optometrists, Ophthalmologists and Otorhinolaryngologists

This category of providers treat diseases and disorders that affect the ability to hear, see, speak, swallow and smell. Over 360 providers and provider sites exist for these health care specialties in Western New York. Optometrists are the most common and reflect 40% of the total.

Close to seven out of ten of these specialists are located in Erie County. They are less concentrated than selected other health professionals in the City of Buffalo and inner-ring suburbs where poverty and Medicaid populations are highest. Similarly, highest poverty areas in Niagara Falls have few providers.

Outside the metropolitan core, specialty services are limited, if available at all. For instance, no audiology services were identified in Allegany, Genesee and/or Orleans Counties. Genesee and Orleans also have no otorhinolaryngology specialists.

Only 2% of these specialists are safety-net providers, serving large volumes of Medicaid populations. None were identified in five out of the region's eight counties, including Erie, the largest county of the region.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Oncologists/ Cancer Treatment, Neurologists and Dermatologists

This category includes specialists who treat diseases and disorders related to cancer, the nervous system and the skin. Exactly 213 providers and provider sites across the region fall into one of these specialties.

Neurology specialists are more common than the others, accounting for over half of the total. Three-quarters of the 200+ identified are located in Erie County, but disproportionately less concentrated in the City of Buffalo compared to suburbs like Amherst where a larger concentrations exists.

Specialty services in these areas are limited, if available at all, across southern Erie County as well as outside the county. None of these specialists exist, for instance in Allegany or Orleans Counties.

Access for those covered by Medicaid is also limited, with few safety-net providers existing across the region. Only 11 altogether - 5% of the total - were identified, and none exist in four out of the eight counties.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Cardiologists and Hematologists

This category includes physicians and other health care providers who specialize in treating diseases and disorders of the heart and blood. Over 160 providers and sites for these services exist in Western New York.

People and places for cardiology care outnumber those for hemotology diagnosis and treatment by six to one. Across all specialists, seven out of ten are located in Erie County. While some are in Buffalo where Medicaid populations are high, concentrations are notable in suburbs like Tonawanda, Amherst and Orchard Park.

Yet south of Orchard Park specialty services are limited, at best, in Erie County. Access is also limited outside of Erie County where about a dozen specialists, at most, exist in any one county. Only two or three options for specialized cardiac care exists in Allegany, Genesee and Orleans, despite the prevalence of heart disease across the region.

Few cardiology and/or hematology specialists treat large volumes of Medicaid, dual eligible or uninsured patients. Only 12 safety-net providers in all were identified.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Surgery Doctors

Over 310 surgeons and surgical practices exists in Western New York, including five providers of laser vision surgery, 116 providers of orthopedic surgery, 24 plastic surgeons and related practices and 166 general surgeon specialists and related providers.

Two out of three of those identified are in Erie County, with concentrations in Buffalo, Amherst and Orchard Park.

Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming are comparatively underserved, with fewer than a half dozen specialty providers in each of these counties. Residents in these more rural areas are more likely to have to travel long distances to seek medical treatment and second opinions related to surgery.

Across the region, few surgeons treat large volumes of Medicaid patients,. Only 15 safety-net providers were identified within this specialty. Every county except Allegany has at least one safety-net provider.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Urologists. Endocrinologists, Nephrologists, Dialysis and Gastroenterologists

This cluster of specialties includes physicians and other health care providers who focus on the treatment of diseases and disorders of the kidneys, gastrointestinal tract, hormones and the urinary and endocrine systems. Slightly over 200 of these specialists and specialty practices were identified. Gastroenterology and urology specialists account for nearly three out of four.

Seven out of ten of these specialists are located in Erie County, with clusters in Buffalo, Amherst, West Seneca and Orchard Park. Relatively few specialists are located in peripheral towns and counties. Only one or two specialists serve the entire populations in Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming Counties. Rather, travel to Erie County is likely needed by residents in rural areas in need of this specialty care.

Options are particularly limited for those on Medicaid, according to the few (13) safety-net providers identified in this group. Several larger safety-net providers are in Erie County and include Buffalo General Hospital, Erie County Medical Center and the Dialysis Center of Western New York. Several rural counties lack a single safety-net provider.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Podiatrists

Podiatrists and podiatry service providers treat diseases and disorders of the feet. Some conditions are related to common chronic diseases such as diabetes, and proper treatment can lessen the likelihood of amputation.

Over 140 specialists in this service category were identified. Most are small private practices with under 5 employees.

Two thirds of podiatry specialists are located in Erie County, scattered across Buffalo and inner-ring suburbs, with relatively few south of Orchard Park or east of Clarence/Lancaster.

Less than five podiatrists are available to treat entire populations in Allegany, Cattaraugus, Genesee, Orleans or Wyoming Counties.

Options for Medicaid-covered populations are even more limited, with only six safety-net specialists for the entire region. With the exception of podiatry services at Buffalo General Hospital, most safety-net providers are individual podiatrists, and no safety-net services are available in four out of the region's eight counties.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Ob/Gyn

This specialty offers a variety of health services for women, especially women of child-bearing age. Over 230 obstetrics and gynecology practitioners and practices were identified across Western New York.

Three-quarters are located in Erie County, a proportion that exceeds Erie County's 60% population share. Amherst and the Main Street corridor in Buffalo are where many are located. Few providers are located in the county's more rural outskirts, east of Clarence or south of Orchard Park.

Only 25 providers are based in Niagara County. This is one provider for every 1,600 women of child-bearing age in the county.

Specialty services for women are limited, too, in more rural counties of the region where six or few providers exist in each, perhaps contributing to comparatively low rates of breast cancer screening and cervical cancer screening among women in these counties.

Options for those on Medicaid are even more limited with only 18 safety-net providers in the group of 232. This is about one out of twelve. While there is at least one safety-net provider in every county, the largest number exists in Erie County.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Physical Medicine

This group of 144 includes specialists in physical and sports medicine, pain management, rheumatology and pathology. While some larger practices exist, most are smaller private practices or solo practitioners with under five employees.

Three out of four are located in Erie County. Comparatively larger numbers exist in Amherst and Buffalo. Options for care are limited for residents in all other counties, where a dozen or fewer exist in each.

Residents in Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming have no more than three options for specialty care. Access to physical medicine may be one of the reasons why over half of survey respondents in Allegany, Cattaraugus. Orleans and Wyoming Counties report living with pain or joint problems that began over three months ago.

Twenty safety-net providers were identified. This is 14% of the total, a slightly larger proportion than exist within selected other medical specialties. There is at least one safety-net provider in all counties of the region except Orleans.

Health Care Providers

Specialty Care: Others

Over 260 health care providers in specialties not otherwise covered offer services to residents in Western New York. The group includes 84 providers of anesthesiology services, 35 allergy and immunology service providers, 31 pulmonary disease specialists and 5 geriatric practices.

Seven out of ten are located in Erie County, with larger numbers in Buffalo, Tonawanda and Amherst.

Relatively few of these specialist exist outside Erie County, particularly in the most rural counties. A half dozen or less are present in Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming, leaving notable gaps. For instance, the Southern Tie Counties have the highest percentages of residents over age 65. Yet not one geriatric specialist was identified in these counties.

Similarly, in counties such as Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming where farm labor is common and work-related injuries may be more likely, there are no specialists in occupational medicine.

In Orleans, Cattaraugus, Wyoming and Genesee, there are no pulmonary disease specialists, despite high rates of avoidable hospitalizations among populations in these counties related to chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and asthma.

Moreover, a relatively small fraction of the total - 15% are safety-net providers, treating larger volumes of Medicaid populations and others who are economically vulnerable.

Community Support Providers

Criminal Justice/Crime Prevention

Providers of criminal justice and crime prevention services help to foster safer and healthier communities. Crime prevention also reduces barriers to employment that those in the system experience and the adverse impacts of crime on victims.

Close to 160 criminal justice and crime prevention supports exist in the region. Many are government-operated entities - probation departments, local courts and police departments - that offer crime prevention programs and alternatives to incarceration for at-risk populations.

About half (52% of the total number) are concentrated in Erie and Niagara Counties where Medicaid population densities are most pronounced and where rates of violent and other crime are highest. These metropolitan counties are home to the largest of these supports, in terms of overall employment, and include Erie County Department of Probation, the Cheektowaga Police Department and the Niagara County Sheriff.

Outside the urban core, 76 provider locations exist, with largest numbers in Chautauqua. This county has 25 criminal justice and crime prevention organizations, versus 7-10 in each of the other more rural counties outside Erie and Niagara. Both Allegany and Genesee County have under 10 providers each - not concentrated where Medicaid population densities are highest - even though rates of violent crime in Genesee County are close to the higher rates that exist in Chautauqua County.

Community Support Providers

Education: Employment Services

There are 196 locations offering education and training to residents to help them gain meaningful employment. Only one of these sites is classified as a Safety Net provider – Spectrum Human Services in Tonawanda.

Employment services are concentrated around major population centers, especially in Erie County which alone holds eighty percent of all employment education and training services in Western New York. Orleans, Genesee and Wyoming counties are all relatively underserved by employment training services with only four providers total existing in these three counties.

Employment service providers are not uniformly well-aligned with high concentrations of Medicaid enrollees. The most visible gap appears over Albion in Orleans County which has a dense population of Medicaid beneficiaries with the nearest employment service provider over ten miles away in Medina. Other mentionable gaps in coverage include Franklinville in Cattaraugus County, and Westfield in Chautauqua County. The villages of Warsaw and Perry are both in close proximity to the one employment service provider in that Wyoming County, though it is isolated from the Attica population.

Community Support Providers

Education: Libraries

Libraries are oftentimes community hubs offering access to books, information, computers, technology, training, youth programs, community programming and more for all residents within a community.

Exactly 160 exist in Western New York. Unlike other service providers that are often disproportionately represented in Erie County, only 40% of library locations identified across the region are in Erie County. However, the largest libraries, in terms of employment, do exist in the metropolitan core - Buffalo, Amherst, Cheektowaga, North Tonawanda and Niagara Falls.

That said, the majority of libraries in Western New York are located in the region's five most rural counties, generally situated in population centers where Medicaid enrollee numbers are highest. Only one library - DVA-WNY Healthcare Library in Batavia (Genesee County) - is designated as a safety-net provider.

Community Support Providers

Education: Higher Education

Higher education is a strength of the region and attaining a college degree expands opportunities for higher-wage employment. At the core are 22 degree-granting institutions of higher education in Western New York.

Many offer educational and other programming at various sites, which are shown on the maps here. The inventory also includes selected higher educational supports such as a college-related research foundation and a college-based technology incubator.

Altogether, just over 201 sites for higher education were identified. Services are strongest in Erie County where seven out of ten providers are located.

Significantly fewer options exist in Cattaraugus, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming Counties. With the exception of Genesee County, none of these rural counties has even a community college, the most affordable option for a two-year degree. This may create barriers to higher education and better-paying jobs, especially for adults in households in these areas without a vehicle.

Not one institution of higher education is designated as a safety-net provider.

Community Support Providers

Education: Parochial Education

Nearly 190 parochial schools exist across Western New York. These are private - often faith-based - schools providing elementary and secondary education to students.

Over eight out of ten are located in Erie and Niagara Counties. Many can be found in the Cities of Buffalo and Niagara Falls where poverty and Medicaid enrollee numbers are high.

While parochial schools are community assets, offering an alternative to public education and strong opportunities for learning, none of the schools identified are designated as safety-net providers, offering services to larger volumes of Medicaid covered students. Rather, the tuition to attend these schools commonly creates access barriers for poorer families.

Relatively few parochial schools are located in rural, less populated counties, where public school districts rank higher than in the largest urban areas and where population densities may not be sufficient to support the operations of these schools at levels that are affordable to families in the vicinity.

Community Support Providers

Education: Primary Schools

Public primary schools are critical community resources, offering not only primary education to youth in the district but also, commonly, before- and after-school programs, outreach to parents, community programming, family resource centers, food for children, and transportation services. Primary schools can oftentimes be a key community partner in programs for children and families.

The eight-county region has just under 100 public school districts, and oftentimes, each of these is comprised of many schools - elementary, middle and high - at different locations. Altogether, 786 locations were identified. The median number of employees as each is just over 50.

Just over half of primary school locations are in Erie County, a proportion that is slightly lower than Erie County's 60% share of the total regional population. About a quarter of this number - 100 - exist in Niagara County. And about a third of locations are in the six most rural counties, exceeding their 26% population share and suggesting the important role schools play in rural communities particularly.

Only one primary school - Baker Hall School at Baker Victory Services in Lackawanna - is designated as a safety-net provider, offering educations services to larger volumes of Medicaid-covered children.

Education: Early Education

Early education lays a foundation for a child's ability to succeed in school in later years. It's a particularly important support for economically vulnerable families who may not have the capacity to afford other opportunities for their children to develop basic learning skills.

Altogether, 128 early education programs were identified across Western New York. These include nursery schools, preschools, Head Starts, and other pre-kindergarten programs. Only one - the early childhood center run by Chautauqua Opportunities, Inc in Jamestown - is a safety-net provider, serving comparatively larger volumes of Medicaid-covered children.

Three out of four early childhood programs are found in Erie and Niagara Counties, present where Medicaid concentrations are highest but also in wealthier inner-ring suburbs such as the Town of Amherst. Yet the largest early childhood program in Erie County, based on employee numbers, is at the Preschool Learning Center in the Village of Springville.

Outside the metropolitan core, 32 programs exist, generally located in population centers where Medicaid enrollee numbers are highest. Notable gaps exist in Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming County where fewer than five early childhood programs exist for the entire county. With the exception of the Rainbow School in Albion (Orleans County), all of the other programs are relatively small, employing 15 or fewer workers at each.

Education: Specialty and BOCES

For youth who are not college bound and adults who need retraining, specialty schools and BOCES offer opportunities to learn a trade and cultivate skills that open doors to career pathways and higher-paying employment.

Just under 180 locations for specialty and BOCES services were identified across Western New York. This group includes BOCES programs, vocational training programs (such as the Manufacturing Technology Institute), alternative education centers, and sites for special education (such as St. Mary's School for the Deaf).

Only six of the total are designated as safety-net providers, offering services to relatively large volumes of Medicaid-covered residents. Most in this small group offer training and related supports to individuals with a disability.

Across the larger group, about six out of ten sites are located in Erie County. So is the largest service provider in the region, in terms of employment, which is Erie 1 BOCES based in the Town of West Seneca.

While every county has a site for BOCES, these locations don't always align with where Medicaid enrollee numbers are highest. This may create access barriers, particularly for adults without a flexible form of transportation but in need of affordable training or retooling of their skills.

Community Support Providers

Food/Clothing and Goods

With low access to food in many areas of the region, supports for affordable food and other basic needs offer a critical support service.

Exactly 259 food and clothing sites exist across the region. These are places where residents can find affordable food and clothing at thrift stores, clothing closets, farmer's markets, senior nutrition sites, food pantries, Meals on Wheels programs and more. Region-wide, locations offering affordable food, including farmer's markets, just slightly outnumber those providing affordable clothing and goods. Based in Erie County and offering affordable food to homebound seniors, Meals on Wheels is one of the region's largest food providers, in terms of employment. Goodwill Industries is the largest among clothing/good supports.

Overall, six out of 10 sites are located in Erie County, where low food access and Medicaid population densities are most pronounced. Only a fraction of this number exist in other counties, even in Niagara County where food access is low relative to other counties in the region and comparable counties across the state.

Options are also extremely limited in the region's most rural counties - with 6 or fewer sites for food in each of Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming Counties. It reveals a notable gap, particularly in Wyoming County where access to food is lower than in other counties and lower than in comparable counties across the state.

Health and Wellness

Seventy-eight health and wellness organizations and sites exist across Western New York. This group includes not-for-profit, governmental and faith-based providers offering programs that raise awareness and funding and provide support, education and screen services to residents. Examples include the Cancer Wellness Center, the Alzheimer's Association and the Lead Prevention Coalition.

Seven out of 10 providers are located in Erie County, primarily concentrated where Medicaid population densities are highest in the City of Buffalo and northern inner-ring suburbs. Visible gaps do exist, though, for vulnerable populations in South Buffalo and Lackawanna.

A small cluster of providers also exists in Niagara Falls. Meanwhile, none were identified in Genesee and Wyoming Counties, and only one or two exist in Allegany and Orleans Counties.

Only one provider in this category is designated as safety-net providers, offering services to relatively large populations of Medicaid-insured residents. The Health Association of Niagara County, Inc. promotes health and wellness in Niagara County through initiatives such as senior companion program, a foster grandparent program, and an obesity-prevention program for children.

Community Support Providers

Housing

Health and housing are linked, with safe, affordable and healthy housing associated with fewer adverse health outcomes. This category includes 255 organizations and provider sites offering housing services to the homeless and vulnerable as well as advocacy organizations, housing assistance providers and public housing authorities. Some of these providers target their programs and services to selected populations such as seniors, veterans and the disabled.

More than half of provider locations are in Erie County, concentrated in the City of Buffalo and its inner-ring suburbs. There is also a cluster in the City of Niagara Falls, and to a lesser extent, the City of Lockport.

Under 10 providers exist in more rural counties - Allegany, Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming, where there may be more of a need for housing supports for low-income homeowners versus renters.

Fifteen housing support organizations are safety-net providers, focused on the disabled and those in addiction recovery. The majority (8) are in Buffalo and each county has at least one safety-net provider with the exception of Cattaraugus and Wyoming Counties where none exist.

Social Services & Welfare

Over 800 social service and welfare organizations and organizational sites exist in Western New York, offering programs and services that respond to myriad social problems. Examples include Catholic Charities , Journey's End Refugee Services, the United Way of Buffalo and Erie County, Senior Outreach Services and community action organizations.

Two out of three are located in Erie County, concentrated in the City of Buffalo and, to a lesser extent, inner ring suburbs, particularly the Towns of Cheektowaga and West Seneca. Niagara Falls also has a concentration, with 125 across Niagara County altogether.

Meanwhile, two dozen or fewer social service organizations are present in each of three counties - Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming. In the region's southern counties - Chautauqua, Cattaraugus and Allegany, where poverty rates are arguably the most pressing regionally - between two and five dozen sites exist in each county, generally concentrated where Medicaid population densities are visibly large.

Across the group of 807, 79 are safety-net providers, with many serving population segments that are disabled, senior or in addiction recovery. Several are community action organizations, as well. Orleans, Genesee and Cattaraugus Counties are the only three with no safety-net providers.

System Integration and Management

This category includes entities that oversee a variety of health programs and foster the integration of health and other services for patients and population. Included are public health programs, health maintenance organizations, information exchanges, and health networks. The landscape of these services sheds light on key players in system integration, something that is particularly important for vulnerable individuals who oftentimes face myriad barriers (economic, educational, linguistic, travel-related, etc.) to the care they need.

Just over 100 provider sites were identified across Western New York. The largest, in terms of employment, are all in Erie County and include the Erie County Department of Health, Fidelis Care and Senior Choice.

Thirteen locations are designated as safety-net providers, offering services to proportionally larger volumes of Medicaid-insured populations. More than not are county health and/or mental health departments in several different counties.

Six out of ten provider sites are located in Erie County, generally in or near populations where Medicaid enrollments are highest. Under six service provider sites exist in Allegany, Genesee. Orleans, and Wyoming Counties. Moreover, only one county in the region - Allegany - has a rural health network that seeks to bring together residents, providers and community partners for the purpose of improving health and well being in the community.

Community Support Organizations

Transportation Support Resources

Less than two dozen transportation providers exist across the region for the approximately 74,4000 households in WNY that do not have access to a vehicle and rely on alternative modes for traveling to services , work and other destinations.

Providers that exist are concentrated in Erie County, many where Medicaid population densities are highest. Only two or three operations exist in other counties, including Niagara County, where in Niagara Falls proportions without a vehicle run as high as 57% of households in selected Zip Codes. In Cattaraugus County, there are no transportation providers for the nearly 3,000 households there without a car.

In addition, the majority of transportation providers that exist across the region offer options for the disabled or for medical purposes. Based in Erie County, We Care is one of the largest providers in this category, offering transportation to health and human services for wheelchair-bound and special needs residents.

Choices for lower-income, able-bodied individuals are sparse, if they exist at all, outside of public transit where it exists. This can create very practical geographic barriers to health and health-promoting resources.

Community Support Providers

Youth/Family Programs, Child Advocacy and Foster Child Agencies

The region has more than 400 organizations and sites providing services for children and families. The group includes 5 child advocacy organizations, 30 foster child agencies and 379 youth and family programs, including community centers, family resource sites, and youth development programs. In terms of employment, the YMCA, YWCA, and Cheektowaga Youth Services are among the largest.

Erie County has the largest number of providers, with most concentrated north of Lackawanna in the City of Buffalo and surrounding suburbs. A smaller cluster exists in Niagara Falls.

Only a handful of youth and family service providers are present in Genesee, Orleans and Wyoming County, even though proportions of more vulnerable single parent families are higher in Orleans than in any other county regionally.

Close to two dozen of all sites are safety-net providers, with all in Erie and Niagara Counties.
